About AGID

The Administration for Community Living's (ACL) AGing, Independence, and Disability (AGID) Program Data Portal provides an online query system that allows you to access ACL-related program performance results, surveys, and other data files. You can easily find data on ACL supportive services and care systems for the aging population and their caregivers, produce various tables, maps, and other summary information from data files and surveys, and access results from the National Survey of Older Americans Act Participants (NSOAAP), in addition to American Community Survey (ACS) Special Tabulations produced by the Census Bureau. You can also find links to Administration on Disabilities programs' data, Administration on Disabilities funded data collection activities, Current Administration on Aging evaluation activities, and contact information for people asked to participate in AoA surveys or studies, or who are interested in accessing evaluation data for research purposes.

To learn more about AGID and the latest news, please visit the AGID Home page, in addition to the About page for more details.

The screenshot shows the ACL AGing, Independence, and Disability (AGID) Program Data Portal homepage. At the top, the ACL logo and the text 'Administration for Community Living AGing, Independence, and Disability (AGID) Program Data Portal' are displayed. A navigation menu includes 'Home', 'Data-at-a-Glance', 'State Profiles', 'Custom Tables', 'Data Files', 'Resources', and 'About'. The 'Home' and 'About' links are highlighted with red boxes, and red arrows point from these boxes to the corresponding sections on the page. The main content area features a header image of an elderly couple, a descriptive paragraph about the portal, and four main data access options: 'Data-at-a-Glance', 'State Profiles', 'Custom Tables', and 'Data Files'. Below this is a 'What's New' section with a list of recent updates, and a 'Resources' section with links to 'About AGID', 'Release Notes', 'Data Sources', and 'FAQ'. The footer contains contact information and the ACL logo.

Data on AGID

AGID offers four different data views: Data-at-a-Glance, State Profiles, Custom Tables, and Data Files. The following sections help you navigate each of these levels of data.

Data-at-a-Glance

The Data-at-a-Glance page lets you access individual data elements from all of AGID’s state-level databases, which allow data mining, exploring various databases, and producing quick tables and geographical representations. Updated as data become available, the state-level databases include State Program Reports (SPR), National Ombudsman Reporting System (NORS), Title VI Services by Tribal Organization, American Community Survey (ACS) Demographic Data, Population Estimates Data, and Census 2010.

The screenshot shows the 'Data-at-a-Glance' page on the AGID Program Data Portal. The page title is 'Data-at-a-Glance' and it provides a tool for generating quick estimates in table format, supplemented by map and chart graphical representations for three AoA administrative data sets (State Program Reports, Title VI Services by Tribal Organization, and the National Ombudsman Reporting System) and three Census databases (American Community Survey Demographic Data, Population Estimates, and Census 2010). Data-at-a-Glance is designed to allow you to examine a single data element by state and year to explore the data for patterns, anomalies, or areas of interest. To begin your query, please select the desired database from the list below.

Selecting any of the blue links will take you to that database’s Data-at-a-Glance page. From there, you can select a Year, Geography (i.e., geographical location), Data Element, and type of visualization (i.e., Map, Line Graph, or Bar Chart) to display the data of interest.¹ Selecting a year from the Year dropdown, a geographic location from the Geography dropdown, or a blue linked item under Data Element will automatically update the map and accompanying table of data below the map. Example: The image below shows NORS data for the number of cases opened in all 50 states, including DC and US territories, in 2017.

¹ These features are the same for all databases except ACS, which also gives options for display, age, and population type.

You can further look at a specific state’s data or compare numerous states using line graphs or bar charts. Select the visualization (i.e., Line Graph or Bar Chart) you prefer and select a state to begin. Depending on your choice, a line graph or bar chart will appear in place of the map. Additional options under Year and Geography will also appear. Select the years and geographical locations of interest and data for them will automatically appear on the line graph or bar chart. The table below the line graph or bar chart will also update. Example: The bar chart below is a comparison of the number of Ombudsman cases opened in DC and VA from 2000-2017.

You can also opt to Download, Share, or Print any results. Options for these actions are located in the in the top right-hand side of the page. You can download maps, line graphs, or bar charts; or data tables in Excel or CSV format. You can share data via email, Facebook, Twitter, and other social networks. You can also print charts and tables.

State Profiles

You can access state level summaries and pre-populated tables of key data elements from Older Americans Act (OAA) Programs on the State Profiles page. Comparisons can be made between states and the total US. Also, locations of State Units on Aging (SUA), Area Agencies on Aging (AAA), and Tribal Organizations (where applicable) can be displayed in both map and tabular forms. Select a state in the map or name of a state in the list below the map to access its profile. There is also an option to view a profile of all OAA programs, including all 50 States, DC & US Territories. You can also zoom in or out on the map by using the + and – controls below the map on the left-hand side.

If you select Maine, for example, you will learn that there is one SUA, five AAAs, and three Tribal Organization locations in the state. These locations appear on the map, as well as in a table below the map (see image below). To differentiate these types of organizations on the map, you can toggle the associated icons on or off by selecting the name of a type of organization in the key. For example, if you wish to only view Tribal Organizations, you can toggle off the icons for SUAs and AAAs by selecting them in the key. The icons for them will then disappear from the map. You can toggle them back on by selecting them in the key again. You can also select any icon on the map to display the name and address of the associated organization. On the left-hand side, you can view state profiles, make state comparisons, and view national tables on a variety of topics. Also, like the map of all states, you can zoom in or out on the map by using the + and – controls.

NSOAAP data files are supplemented with survey instruments and documentation, codebooks with variable listings and frequencies of all individual data elements, and SAS programming statements. Survey data files and technical documentation (e.g., Census Bureau Technical Notes, AoA Notes on the Special Tabulation) exist for ACS Special Tabulations and Decennial Census Special Tabulation.

For some data files, you are provided options to Download, Share, or Print data files. Options for these actions are located on the top right-hand side of the page. You can download files in Excel and/or CSV format. You can share data files via email, Facebook, Twitter, and other social networks. You can also print some data files. For other data files you are provided options to download as ZIP files or other formats, along with accompanying files (e.g., codebooks, survey instruments, etc.). Links to these files are provided in the text of the page as opposed to the options located on the top right-hand side of the page.

Example: The data output below is a data story on the OAA Nutrition Services Program. It contains quick facts on the purpose of the program, services provided, and uses data obtained from the AGID website itself to tell a story.

Older Americans Act Nutrition Services Program

Program Quick Facts

- The Older Americans Act (OAA) Nutrition Services Program provides regular and adequate sources of nutrition to older adults with the greatest social and economic need in order to reduce hunger and food insecurity, promote socialization, and delay the onset of adverse health conditions.
- Services include healthy meals in group settings, such as senior centers and faith-based locations, as well as in the homes of older adults who live alone. Other services include nutrition screening, assessment, education, and counseling.

The 2016 State Program Reports (SPR) data tells us that in the 50 States, DC, and Territories:

867,153 people received
home delivered meals

1,572,038 people received
congregate meals

According to the 2016 National Survey of OAA Participants (NSOAAP), most individuals receiving meals would recommend the service to their friends:

|----------------------|-----|
| Congregate Meals | 96% |
| Home Delivered Meals | 95% |

0% 50% 100%
